AAA Home Health Named as Prestigious 2013 HHCAHPS Honors™ Recipient

New Iberia, La., November 1, 2013 — AAA Home Health has been named a 2013 HHCAHPS Honors recipient, a prestigious award recognizing those home health agencies that provide the best patient experience.

Established by Deyta, this prestigious annual honor recognizes the top 20 percent of agencies that continuously provide the highest level of satisfaction through their care as measured from the patient's point of view. HHCAHPS Honors acknowledges the highest performing agencies ranked by analyzing satisfaction measures covering both performance and improvement of care over a twelve-month period.

Deyta used the HHCAHPS survey results from over 1,200 eligible home health agencies contained in its HHCAHPS database with an evaluation period of April 2012 to March 2013. Two domains of performance were used in the calculations covering the nineteen questions that comprise the five publicly reported HHCAHPS measures found on Home Health Compare. Qualifications for eligibility included those HHAs that were compliant and partnered with Deyta for the evaluation period.

"We are excited to honor these outstanding home health agencies," said J. Kevin Porter, Deyta's President and CEO. "Their tireless work has made a real difference in the lives of their patients, and we look forward to acknowledging their excellence."

Dan Bettini, Vice President of AAA Home Health, credits the genuine concern and compassion the AAA staff has for its patients. He said, "Our nurses, therapists, and aides treat their patients like family members. You won't find a more compassionate group. We appreciate our patients and Deyta for recognizing our efforts and bestowing us with this award."
